

Hair Transplants

The design and distribution of hair follicles during the placement for the hair transplant is one of the most crucial factors for a successful procedure and solely depends on the skill of the Doctor.

Factors that should be taken into account are:

- The Patients age
- Facial Features
- Number of available follicles
- Clients expectations
- The likely future needs

Design and distribution of the hair follicles is also completely customised to meet the needs of the client fulfilling 3 basic conditions.

- Minimal impact on the donor and recipient area.
- A natural even looking coverage .
- Perfect result with the maximum possible density taking into account the size of the session, the available follicles and the patients needs.

YHRC uses implanter's on the recipient area.

The use of an implanter is significant as they allow the definition of the depth, the implantation angle and the correct direction of individual hair according to the needs of each area and avoiding slits as with the forcep method.

So a faster healing and minimal trauma to the recipient area.

Is a hair transplant procedure painful?

Patients report only a small amount of discomfort associated with a hair transplant procedure, (when the local anesthetic is first given). Further, all patients are given a relaxing medication prior to the procedure which improves the hair transplant experience.

Will my new hair look natural?

The old hair plug days of "Doll" hair are long gone. Hair transplant technicians today (worldwide) use various techniques that transfer one to five hairs maximum (per graft) from the donor area to the recipient area. By implementing these techniques, your new hair will look and feel natural and no one will know the difference unless you tell them!

What is involved in a hair transplant?

At your initial consultation, with trained staff will carefully evaluate your present hair pattern to determine the best possible design for your new grafts. Not everyone is a hair transplant candidate, so if we feel a hair transplant is not in your best interest, we will tell you so! The procedure will be completely explained and you will know in advance all costs involved. In most cases, the hair implantation procedure takes only a few hours. Since only local anesthesia is used, you will be home the same day.

Are hair transplants the answer to male pattern baldness?

There are several products on the market today that promise regrowth of hair. Unfortunately, most of them are ineffective, costly, and certainly not permanent. Of all the options currently available, hair transplants are the only permanent solution and YHRC makes them more affordable over a lifetime than other types of recognised treatment methods.

Where will the surgery take place?

The hair transplant procedure takes place at our CLINIC in DUBLIN IRELAND so there is no need for expensive hospital stays. The procedure is safe and simple in the hands of the experienced staff. The staff recommends that a friend or loved one drive you home after the procedure. Or, YHRC can make hotel reservations for you to spend the night in Dublin and leave the following day. Some patients even choose to fly out of Dublin the same day, provided they have transportation to pick them up at their destination city.

In most cases, patients will leave the office without even a Band-aid. A baseball cap works well to hide the graft implanted area for the first few days.

Will I need more than one procedure?

That will depend on the extent of your hair loss and the number of implants per surgery. It takes about 4 months to see the new growth. That is a good time to return for further evaluation to see if more sessions are indicated.

What does the healing process involve?

Although there may be some redness and swelling for a few days following your procedure, it is usually not very noticeable. Existing hair, if possible, may be combed over the grafted area to hide them while they are healing. You may shampoo the donor area gently 24 hours after your procedure and recipient area 4 days after the procedure.

What is the largest amount of transplants I can have at one time?

The largest number of grafts YHRC can implant at one time may vary between 2,500 and 3,000. Larger mega sessions than this are rare since your Doctor needs to allow adequate room in between each new hair graft for blood supply. In a subsequent hair transplant procedure, our Doctor can then implant new grafts in between the hair grafts from the first session to provide greater density and fullness.

How long will the procedure last?

The time it takes to complete a procedure depends on the number of hair grafts implanted. Please call us for more information on how long the procedure lasts.

Will I be able to drive after the surgery?

Like most types of out-patient surgery, you will not be able to drive home immediately after your surgery. In addition to the local anaesthetic, patients are given a mild sedative to help them relax, prior to their procedure. Patients who want to leave immediately after the surgery should bring someone with them.

Why does the new hair have to fall out?

It is perfectly normal for the newly implanted hairs to fall out during the healing process. Understand that by being transplanted, they have gone into a sort of shock or trauma which moves them (ahead of schedule) into the resting phase of the 3 stage Hair Growth cycle. All of this is completely normal and you should not worry as the dermal papilla of the hair root is firmly implanted in your scalp and will regrow again. In some rare cases, the newly implanted hairs will scab as they heal - but not fall out within the next few weeks following your surgery. Sometimes, the hair stays in place, but this happens only rarely.

How long does it take for new hair to grow?

To a new hair transplant patient, waiting for his hair to grow in can seem like an eternity. For those of us who have been there, we are anxious to see our new "look." In 3 to 6 months on average, patients will notice their new grafts growing in, slowly at first and not all at the same time. Hair grows at the rate of 1 cm to 1/2 inch per month. Just be patient and keep in mind that for some hair transplant patients, waiting 8 to 12 months is necessary.

How long do I have to wait for another procedure?

Because it can take 6 to 12 months for your new hair grafts to grow in, you need to wait that long before you can have another procedure. The faster your new grafts come in, the sooner you can have a second procedure if needed. Your hair transplant Doctor to be able to see the new grafts coming in so they can more effectively map out where to implant the hair grafts from your second session.

Can I use Propecia (Finasteride). Rogaine/Regaine (Minoxidil) after surgery?

Both finasteride and minoxidil are treatments for hair loss that have been reported to be successful in growing new hair. Minoxidil has a 1 in 3 success rate for crown hair growth in men and finasteride reports a 2 in 3 success rate for new hair growth on the crown region. Even though finasteride may not work for all men, it is generally accepted as a treatment to stop further hair loss. If your goal is just to keep the hair you have without losing more, and getting new hair growth with hair grafts, finasteride is an excellent co-treatment option along with hair transplants. Any new hair growth that finasteride can provide should be considered a bonus.

Will I have a scar and what will it look like?

YHRC employs the FUE method for grafts. The grafts are taken from back or sides of your head by our Doctor we recommend the donor area shaved for extraction, you will have small red dots for 2 to 4 days maximum which will fade each day the FUE method is non invasive and there is no cutting or scaring with the FUE procedure .

Who can benefit from hair transplant surgery?

Anyone who has experienced permanent hair loss may be a candidate for hair restoration surgery, including:

- Men with male pattern baldness
- Women with female pattern hair loss
- Men or women who want to restore or change the shape of their hairline
- People with areas of scarring from injuries or "scarring" skin diseases, and also patients who experienced some hair loss after surgery, such as face lift procedures
- People who want to thicken or restore eyebrows, and beards
- Men and women who want hair in an area where they have little or no hair
